Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different departments of a hospital. The sample consisted of 100 nurses from the intensive care unit and 100 nurses from the medical-surgical department. Data were collected by means of a questionnaire containing information about sociodemographic variables, work characteristics, and musculoskeletal symptoms. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among nurses from the intensive care unit than among nurses from the medical-surgical department. The most prevalent disorder was low back pain, followed by neck pain and shoulder pain. The results suggest that interventions aimed at reducing the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders should be directed towards the intensive care unit.

Pig as part of way of life of Igorots

By Winston Salazar

Igorots in the Cordillera region of northern Luzon have a long history of pig raising. The pig is not only a source of food but also a symbol of wealth and status. In the Igorot culture, the pig is often used as a form of payment or compensation in traditional disputes. The pig is also a central part of many traditional rituals and ceremonies. The Igorots have a deep connection with the pig, and it is an integral part of their way of life.

Fictionist dares to voice the unspeakable

By Winston Salazar

Some writers dare to voice the unspeakable. They write about the darkest parts of the human psyche, the things that we would rather not think about. These writers are often called "taboo writers" and their work is often controversial. However, their work is also powerful and thought-provoking. They challenge our preconceptions and force us to confront the ugly truths of the world. Their work is a testament to the power of the written word.

The artist's picture of an entertainer can be a splash in the news. It can be a powerful statement about the entertainer's life and career. It can also be a controversial one, as it often depicts the entertainer in a way that is not seen in the public eye. The artist's picture is a reflection of the artist's perspective and can be a valuable tool for understanding the entertainer's personality and work.

The diagram illustrates the experimental setup for studying the effect of reactant concentration on reaction rate. It features a reaction vessel equipped with a stirrer and a thermometer. The reaction is monitored by measuring the change in temperature over time.

Figure 1. Schematic representation of the experimental design. The subjects were divided into two groups: the control group (n = 10) and the experimental group (n = 10). The control group received a standard diet (SD) and the experimental group received a high-fat diet (HFD). The α and β subunits of the $\alpha\beta$ heterodimer are encoded by separate genes. The α subunit is encoded by the α gene, and the β subunit is encoded by the β gene. The α and β subunits are synthesized as prepropeptides and are then processed to mature peptides. The mature peptides are then assembled into the $\alpha\beta$ heterodimer. The α and β subunits are then glycosylated and the heterodimer is secreted. The α and β subunits are then processed to mature peptides. The mature peptides are then assembled into the $\alpha\beta$ heterodimer. The α and β subunits are then glycosylated and the heterodimer is secreted.

Figure 1 consists of 12 micrographs, labeled (a) through (l), arranged in a 4x3 grid. Each micrograph shows a different stage of chick embryo development, specifically focusing on the eye. The stages are: (a) 10 days, (b) 12 days, (c) 14 days, (d) 16 days, (e) 18 days, (f) 20 days, (g) 22 days, (h) 24 days, (i) 26 days, (j) 28 days, (k) 30 days, and (l) 32 days. The images show the progression of retinal development, including the formation of the optic nerve and the differentiation of retinal cell types. The labels are placed below each corresponding micrograph.
